GUI and Command-Line

When it comes to a Graphical User Interface vs a Command-line interface, I prefer a GUI. I am a very visual learner/user and I find having things laid out with icons makes it easier to follow along with. However, this is what I have been used to my whole life so that may change once I am more familiar with Command-Line interfaces. I do think I might struggle with possibly getting lost in a Command-Line interface since there are so many lines of text, but I do like how it seems straight forward as far as navigation. Either way, I look forward to getting to try and learn new was of interacting with my computer!
